EAS/ANT 225: JAPANESE SOCIETY AND CULTURE

Japanese society and culture poses compelling questions to American observers. Despite Japan’s status as a major industrial power in the world economy, its social institutions and cultural values are markedly different from American ones (though not as different from other Asian and European ones). We will examine topics of the corporation, schooling, youth culture, the maintenance of social order through law and policing, gender and the family, feminism, and popular culture and counter-culture. The course also looks at social tensions within Japan and the costs of maintaining cohesion and stability. Japan now faces a key juncture in its history: the need (and demand) to move beyond its intimate postwar relationship with the United States and to forge more international ties, particularly within Asia. How prepared is Japan to face that challenge?

Course Requirements
1. Participation in precepts, lectures and class discussions
2. Midterm Exam, October 24 in class
3. Essay, 8-10 pages, due Tuesday, January 15, “Dean’s Date” (due in preceptor’s box by 5 p.m.)
4. Final Examination (to be scheduled)

Students are accountable for all material presented in readings, lectures, and films.

Evaluation
Course grades will be based on midterm exam (25%), essay (25%), final examination (30%), and class participation (20%). Class participation includes participation in precept and lecture attendance.

Essay
The essay should be based on course readings with some additional reading on the topic—a book or one or two articles. Suggested topics are posted on the EAS 225 courseinfo website. You may also define your own topic in consultation with your preceptor. Late policy: Late papers will be marked down one third of a grade each day (e.g. from B+ to B).

Readings
A course reader is available at Pequod Copy in the U-Store. It is also on reserve at Gest Library. The following books are required and can be purchased at the Princeton University Store. They are also on reserve at the East Asian Studies Library, Gest Library (Frist 3rd floor). Two copies of the reader are also on reserve at Gest.
