Social Security

How would you protect Social Security for today’s seniors and strengthen it for future generations?

AARP’s Position:
Social Security should continue to guarantee that Americans who work and pay into the system receive benefits based on what they earn and contribute. Benefits should keep up with inflation and last for as long as an individual lives. We must strengthen Social Security for the future and protect benefits for people who count on them most, including surviving spouses and families, lower-wage workers, and disabled individuals who no longer can work. Social Security must be put on stable financial ground, but any adjustments should be implemented gradually so changes do not impact those in or near retirement.

Jerry Lee Brashear-Modica (Dem):
AARP did extensive research but was unable to find any public statement on this issue by July 11, 2014.

Eddie Bernice Johnson (Dem):
"On the third anniversary of the Social Security Act, President Roosevelt said, ‘We have come a long way. But we still have a long way to go. There is still today a frontier that remains unconquered — an America unclaimed. This is the great, the nationwide frontier of insecurity, of human want and fear. This is the frontier — the America — we have set ourselves to reclaim.’ Today, much of that dream has been realized. While we may never completely eradicate poverty, great strides have been made. In 1935, more than 50% of the elderly population lived in poverty. Today that poverty rate stands officially at 9.4% (Source: Politifact; http://ow.ly/cmLFp)

Medicare

How would you put Medicare on stronger financial ground and protect today’s seniors and future retirees from rising health costs?

AARP’s Position:
Medicare should be strengthened and improved so both current and future generations can count on having access to high-quality, affordable coverage. Medicare should continue to guarantee a specific set of benefits that are affordable and meet a person’s health care needs. Medicare should offer choices that ensure access to high-quality health care. Medicare should improve the quality, safety, and efficiency of care by emphasizing value and cracking down on fraud, waste, and abuse.

Eddie Bernice Johnson (Dem):
As a steadfast advocate for the elderly, Congresswoman Johnson has worked to improve the Medicare program so our senior citizens can get the medical attention they deserve. Congresswoman Johnson believes that Medicare is a vital component in improving the quality of life for elderly Americans across all walks of life. She has continuously fought to support the program, despite attempts to subvert it, and remains committed to protecting and preserving Medicare for this and future generations. Financial Security

How would you help Americans save so they can secure their future and live independently as they age?

AARP’s Position:
More opportunities and incentives should be available for all Americans to plan and save so they can have a more secure future. Freedom from age discrimination is a fundamental right and critical to Americans’ ability to have a secure retirement. Every worker should be treated fairly, regardless of age. We need to support family caregivers who make it possible for more seniors to live in their homes and communities, where they want, rather than taxpayers and struggling families paying for costlier care.

Eddie Bernice Johnson (Dem):
“Small businesses are the foundation of our economy and are an integral part of creating jobs and rebuilding the economy for the future,” said Congresswoman Johnson. “We owe it to them to ensure that they have a business environment in this country that helps them grow and flourish. Increased access to capital and new tax cuts will not only keep jobs in America, it will allow small businesses to make it in America.”
